Salem High School Alumni

Situated at 330 E. State Street in downtown Salem, Ohio is the home of the Salem High School Alumni Association. Originally constructed sometime between 1820 and 1860 (exact date unknown), this historic building has been their office building since 1983. The building was previously a tavern, shoe store, hardware store, billiard hall, tobacconist, photography studio and a cosmetology school. In 2019, the association began an important renovation project with DPH Architecture as the designers and Adolph Johnson & Son Co. as the general contractor. The project kicked off in June and involves replacement of the front foundation and facade of the building. Completion is scheduled for the end of October.

MCCTC Fire Training Center

Adolph Johnson & Son was selected as the design builder for the MCCTC Fire Training Center in the late Spring 2019. Design was completed by DPH Architecture this summer and construction commenced in late August.

Currently, the Nucor pre-engineered metal building is being erected and the project is on schedule. This facility will be one of only a few in the entire state of Ohio, providing a very valuable resource to this area.

Austintown Police Station

With a need for additional space for the dispatching unit, Austintown Township Police contacted Adolph Johnson & Son Co. to design and build an addition to their station. The new space will provide for the additional dispatchers to help safety forces answer the calls.

The necessity for a quiet environment, Autoclave Aerated Concrete was selected for the exterior walls due to its excellent sound deadening characteristics. Inside the space, the layout and selected materials will isolate sound to minimize disturbances for the dispatchers. The new dispatcher's area will provide a functional and attractive place for their important work.

The freeing up of the existing dispatch area will allow other units to utilize the much needed additional space.

President's Ponderings

Heritage! We all have it. Don't often think about it. Usually, we don't acknowledge it for the significant role it plays in our lives.

There are various forms of heritage. Among them are Personal Heritage, which for most people comes from their ancestors; Cultural Heritage, which includes customs and traits common to a group of people; Civic Heritage, coming from a city, state, nation, or other form of government. Regardless of the type of heritage, they all play an important role in who we are and what we do.

We are fortunate if we have a heritage that has something particularly good. If there is an ancestor who accomplished something memorable and positive it sends the message to descendants that they, too, can do something of significance. Families tend to obscure the not so good heritage, i.e., the great uncle who spent 20 years in prison for robbing a bank.

Likewise, a Cultural Heritage can make life more interesting with the inherited foods and customs and the sharing of them with others. If you feel lacking in Cultural Heritage or don't particularly care for the heritage you have you can always start new customs to be handed down through generations.

The Civic Heritage is only as good as the structure and execution of the governments under which we live. We in the U.S.A. are particularly fortunate to have the heritage given to us by our forefathers that allows us to live with the freedom and prosperity we enjoy today.

Let us all value the heritage we have and continue to propagate it for future generations.

Enjoy!
Paul A. Johnson Jr.

It is not the honor that you take with you,
but the heritage you leave behind.

Politics ought to be the part time profession of every citizen who would protect the rights and privileges of free people and would preserve what is good and fruitful in our national heritage.

Celebrating 100 Years -

September 14th Adolph Johnson & Son Co. held a celebration event recognizing 100 years in business.

The event featured the best of "Fair Food", music by Stan Miller, historical exhibits, games for the kids and more.

Most importantly, it was a chance to gather with current and former employees, customers and vendors; all of whom have played a part in the history of Adolph Johnson & Son Co.'s first 100 years.

Thank you to all!

The kids know how to celebrate!
